“ I worked with Fred for many years on campus and in the wavier homes. I always loved working in his home as he was so happy and would make you feel that way too. I loved how excited he would get over his trains and how he would so expressively talk with his hand. My favorite story Fred would tell was about him riding in the ambulance, he would twirl his finger around and make the siren noise, then he would hold out his arm and take his other hand and point at his arm and make a face , telling you they started an IV . He didn't like that part but he loved to tell you it happened. He would give the best hugs, he had the cutest laugh. He will be greatly missed by so many people who he effected in such a positive way over the years. RIP my friend. For his Brother i hope you know that your brother had alot of people who loved him and considered him part of our family, and i hope that brings peace to your heart in this sad time.

“ In 1977 I began teaching at MSSH. Fred was one of my first students. He was truly a gentleman and a gentle soul. I don't ever recall him being upset. He was highly thought of by everyone who knew him. I doubt he'll do much resting in peace. He'll be too busy greeting everyone and making many friends. God bless him. Phil Parker
